Society Folk Become Active At Washington

Mr. and Mrs. Hortle Entertain House Party, Including Sir Auckland and Lady Geddes, at Colonial Estate

Mrs. Wilson Receives

Wives of Justices of the Supreme Court Are Guests at Tea in the White House

Special Dispatch to The Tribune
WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—American social life is being portrayed at its best in Washington just now, the between seasons admitting less formality and the fortunate ones using their suburban or country homes for the entertainment of diplomats and other distinguished guests.

The beautiful old estate of George Mason, the Signer—Gunston Hall, now owned by Mr. and Mrs. Louis Hertle, of Chicago and Washington—came in for its mead of Colonial entertainment when, on Sunday, the British Ambassador, Sir Auckland Geddes and Lady Geddes, the Ambassador to Great Britain and Mrs. John W. Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lansing and General and Mrs. Tasker H. Bliss were guests there. The Sylph, the government yacht, took the party down the Potomac Sunday morning and docked at the foot of the estate.

There was a day of rest for the visitors and in the evening Secretary of Interior John Barton Payne motored to Gunston Hall to spend the night. The trip must have been to the British taste, at least, for the following day Lady Geddes motored again to Gunston Hall to take luncheon with Mrs. Hertle and had with her Lady Blanche Beresford.

When Mrs. Woodrow Wilson received the wives of the Chief Justice and Associate Justices of the Supreme Court Monday—an annual custom—she met them in the Red Parlor, where there is a degree of coziness not to be found in any other of the suite of state drawing rooms. Tea was served. The event was about as informal as anything could be, but it was less informal than the impromptu reception which the visiting bankers gave the President or the President gave the bankers, whichever way it is construed. The bankers' event happened when the President and Mrs. Wilson were rallying forth for their annual afternoon ride, and a large company formed about the White House gate to see them come out. The President was met with a round of cheers and hat waving and in response bowed and smiled right and left.

It was the first time in the history of events that a Secretary of Treasury failed to entertain so important a financial body.

Mrs. James Entertains
New York lent to Washington society Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cecil Hunt, who came as the guests of Mrs. Julian Ames after visiting Bridgeport, Conn., and Mrs. Mabel Gerry in the city.

Mrs. Hunt invited several important companies to meet them, and the Minister of Serbia, Count and Countess, and Mrs. Grouche gave a dinner in their honor Tuesday night.

Major General H. K. Bellet, military attaché of the British Embassy, entertained at dinner Monday night for Lady Blanche Beresford at St. Mark's Café. Later Lady Geddes entertained a dinner party and many additional guests at a dance in the embassy ballroom.

The Ambassador and Lady Geddes entertained a dinner party at the embassy on Tuesday night, and again there was dancing.

Mrs. Bainbridge Colby, wife of the Secretary of State, entertained at luncheon on Monday for Mrs. Samuel Romano Avezano, wife of daughter, Miss Romano, and on Wednesday there was another notable luncheon party when Lady Geddes and Lady Blanche Beresford were guests of the Misses Patten.

There was a war-time refrain in the dinner which the Minister of Serbia and Mme. Grouche gave early in the week in honor of the members of the Jugo-Slav military mission from Vladivostok, who are now en route to Belgrade, and who have stopped in Washington for a brief visit. There were eight of these guests who have been helping to make history for their part of the world, and not one has seen his family since 1915.

Mrs. Lansing Given Tea
Mrs. Charles Warren returned to Washington from Boston in time to assist Mrs. Robert Lansing at the tea which she gave for Mrs. John W. Davis and to preside at the tea table.

The tea was informal and included the British diplomats and others of the corps of the hostesses. Mrs. Warren also was a guest at several of the hostesses' extended to Lady Blanche Beresford, who has now returned to Canada.

Countess de Moltke Helfeldt, who numbers among her American ancestors, Webster, her mother, the late Mme. Bonaparte, having been Caroline Leitz Apollon, of Boston, while her father, Count de Moltke, was a French nobleman, was the guest of her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Joseph Bonaparte, of Baltimore, staying with them at their splendid Colonial estate in the Long Green Valley, Maryland.

One of the most interesting visitors to the annual chrysanthemum show, now in progress at the Department of Agriculture, was Honorable Shintaro, wife of the Ambassador of Japan, who viewed her native blossoms grown on foreign soil. Many of the old blossoms bore new names, rechristened by Mrs. Meredith, wife of the Secretary of Agriculture, and their son. The "Mrs. Woodrow Wilson," a huge white blossom, topped a stalk of 7 feet, towered above the rest.

Mrs. Dilg Becomes Bride
Married to Arthur E. Reinhardt in Intercession Chapel
The wedding of Miss Anita F. Dilg, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. J. Dilg, and Arthur E. Reinhardt, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. N. Reinhardt, of this city, took place Friday evening in the Chapel of the Intercession, 15th Street and Broadway, the Rev. Roman Harding, curate, officiating. The bride was escorted by her brother, Mr. Herbert Reinhardt, a recent bridegroom, and the other attendants were Miss Beulah Brooks Taggart, Miss Elsie Sterlin, Miss Helen Eggers and Miss Margaret Pailmer. Miss Annette Ducker, the bride's cousin, was flower girl. Edward A. Meissner Jr. was the bridegroom's best man and the ushers were Elliot Benzen, Elmer Benzen, Walter Reinhardt and J. Herbert Schneider.

Historical Tableaux Mark Halloween In Lenox Colony

Eight Pictures of Pilgrim, Puritan and Indian Characters Are Presented at Pittsfield Country Club

Special Dispatch to The Tribune

LENOX, Mass., Oct. 30.—Historical tableaux, with a dinner for 200 persons, dancing and bridge, comprised the annual Halloween program at the Pittsfield Country Club tonight. There were eight pictures of Pilgrim, Puritan and Indian characters arranged by Mrs. Charles L. Hubbard, Miss Frances Galt and Miss Elizabeth Kennell. Among others who assisted in the tableaux were Mrs. Winthrop M. Crane, Mrs. Thomas Flannery, Mrs. Henry R. Russell, Mrs. Frank E. Peirson, Mrs. Henry D. Brigham and Mrs. Charles W. Power.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hollister Pense had a large Halloween dinner at their villa last night. Among others who entertained during the week were Mrs. Raymond T. Baker, Mr. and Mrs. Frank R. Staig, Mr. and Mrs. Giraud Foster and Miss Kate Cary.

Miss M. Adelle Brower gave a large luncheon at Hillside in Stockbridge, on Sunday in honor of Miss Jean C. Sills of Taurus, Asia Minor, who started on Thursday for Los Angeles.

Mrs. John Stewart McLennan had a luncheon party at Anshutt, in Tyringham, on Monday for Mrs. Royal Whitman, of New York; Mrs. Luther Bradley, of Chicago; John Wells Farley and Mrs. Moses Williams, of Boston; and Mrs. Frankline Chase Hoyt, of the Children's Court, Mrs. Hoyt and Mr. and Mrs. John C. Gray, of New York, were among the visitors who registered for the week end at the Stockbridge Golf.

Miss Cordelia S. Hepburn, of New York, and Miss Christina M. Nichols, of Katonah, N. Y., passed the week at the Red Lion Inn at Stockbridge, while exploring the hills. On Tuesday they followed the Burgoyne trail over Beartown Mountain and later visited Bushy Park, on Mount Washington, where they were met by Mrs. Samuel Verplanck Hoffman and Miss Margaret E. Hoffman, of Morristown, N. J.; Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Van Cortlandt and Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Gordon, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur L. Willis, of Flushing, L. I., and Richardson Pratt, who joined his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Pratt.

Mr. and Mrs. Bartow Harwood Hall, who were married last Saturday at Grace Church, New York, are passing their honeymoon at the Stockbridge villa of her aunt, Miss Lydia Field Emmet.

Mrs. Joseph H. Choate, who has been one of the most active dinner and luncheon hostesses in Berkshire this season, is to close her villa Monday and return to New York.

Mrs. Nina Lacey Duryea, head of the Duryea relief fund at Paris during the war, is to pass the winter in Taormina, Sicily. Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Roberts, of Philadelphia, have taken her house, the Mill, for a month.

Miss Eliza W. and Miss Caroline White are occupying Allen F. Treadwell's house at Stockbridge for a month.

Mrs. M. Dwight Collier, who passed the season at Curtis Hotel, is to be with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. David T. Dunn, this winter. Mrs. Albert E. Shattuck closed her house on Wednesday and went to the Curtis. Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Frelinghuysen, of Newark, also spent the week here. The hotel will be closed Monday for the season.

Mrs. Payne to Lecture
First in Series To Be Given Wednesday
Mrs. Jessica Lester Payne will make her first appearance this season in New York on Wednesday, beginning her series of twelve talks, "History in the Making," given under the auspices of the New York Diet Kitchen Association at Aeolian Hall, 34 West Forty-third Street.

Her knowledge of the political principles at stake, through first-hand observation abroad during the summer and her study of conditions in America during the present period, form an unusual, striking background for her lecture.

Mrs. James H. Littlehales

Miss Sims is a daughter of Representative and Mrs. Thetis W. Sims. Her engagement to T. K. Reddick, of Memphis, Tenn., was announced recently. No date has been set for the wedding. Miss Sims recently returned from Europe, where she spent several months in England and Switzerland.

Miss Wooler is one of this winter's Washington debutantes. She is a daughter of Interstate Commerce Commissioner and Mrs. Robert Wooler.

Mrs. Littlehales was Miss Rose Rockwell. She was married October 16 at the home of her grandmother, Mrs. Teresa Dillon, in Cleveland Park, Washington.

Halloween Revelers Make Boardwalk at Atlantic City Gay

City Officials Permit Wearing of Masks, While Leading Hotels and Piers Give Special Dances and Prizes

Special Dispatch to The Tribune

ATLANTIC CITY, Oct. 30.—Masked revelers celebrating Halloween had the right of way on the boardwalk, piers and in most of the large hotels tonight. City officials consented to allow the wearing of masks on the boardwalk and the leading piers gave special dance functions with prizes for the most striking costumes. Pumpkins and autumn leaves were used as decorations in the hotels which held dances, and there was much life among the cottages in Chelsea and Ventnor, who had guests to assist them in celebrating.

"Election parties" will be much in vogue Tuesday night when the interested ones will gather to get returns. All the large hotels have special wires and the theatrical and café orchestras along the boardwalk will be halted every time there is a flash of red news from the voting fronts. So far there has been little real interest along the boardwalk in the outcome of the election and many family folk here for late fall vacations have forwarded their ballots to home officials rather than make round trips to home polls.

The recent cut in hotel rates made by the big hotels seems to have boomed travel toward the boardwalk and has brought much favorable comment from regular fall and winter patrons of the resort.

Although the season for duck shooting has been a disappointment so far because of the lack of a season to drive the wildfowl from ocean feeding grounds into the bays, the fine weather has brought joy to golfers and to fishermen and yachtsmen. Senator Pearson, who has been the Shoreborne for weeks, has ordered his yacht out of commission, but most owners of pleasure craft are keeping their vessels in and still enjoying deep sea cruising.

Many golfers remained after the recent tournament at Northfield and will play so long as the greens remain in their present fine shape.

General Jacob Coxey, of Core's Army fame, was among the boardwalk strollers this week. He stopped at the Traymore with friends, with whom he later motored to New York. Major H. L. Dodge, of London, has joined the foreign colony at the Traymore.

Lakewood Launches Social Season With Functions at Hotels

Many Halloween Parties Dance and Dine at Various Houses; Cottage Colony Also Makes Merry

Special Dispatch to The Tribune

LAKEWOOD, N. J., Oct. 30.—Tonight marked the opening of the social season here. While hotels have been open for the autumn since the first of the month, there has been little social activity until a party setting for the best of the country, has had a stronger lure than any indoor functions. Tonight, however, social functions began to play a greater part in the resort life of the place. The initial numbers on the social program were several Halloween parties at the hotels, besides many little affairs at the homes of the season residents.

The Laurel-in-the-Pines ballroom was the scene of a large gathering. Cornstalks, autumn leaves and other decorations appropriate for the season presided in a pretty setting for the dancers. The Laurel House in celebrating the evening inaugurated a new feature at the hotel when it opened the Green Arbor Grill. Invitations were issued for the opening of the ballroom, and Halloween merry-makers crowded the room, which was given over to dancing. Decorations in the new grill are in western and give a delightful atmosphere of Southern climes.

The Laurel-in-the-Pines also was the scene of a merry Halloween party, as were the Virginia, Marlborough and other hotels. The management of the Lakewood Hotel was up to the task and a big party this evening, but it was necessary to postpone the opening of the season residents.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Pack, after an absence, are back with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lathrop Pack at Lathrop Hall.

Mrs. Stanley Washburn, of Forest Avenue, has been entertaining Mrs. B. Williams, of Minnesota. During the week Mrs. Washburn entertained for her guests at tea. Among those calling were Mrs. Elbert E. Radwin, Mrs. Garret, Mrs. Ferris and Mrs. Charles Lathrop Pack.

Golden continues popular at the Country Club. George J. Gould entertained a number of week-end friends at a golfing party Sunday. Anthony J. Drexel Jr. has had a number of his friends at the clubhouse. F. W. Westlake and Guy Robinson, of New York, with Walter Sessions, of London, spent part of the week on the links.

Fashionable Folk Prepare to Flock To White Sulphur

Usual Sojourners Defer Visits Until After Election in Expectation of Passing November at the Springs

Special Dispatch to The Tribune

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., Oct. 30.—Many society people, who formerly passed the month of October at White Sulphur Springs, have deferred their visits until after election in order that they may have ample time to remain and take the cure, after the destiny of the nation has been settled.

Governor Beekman of Rhode Island and Mrs. Beekman expect to make their usual visit to the Greenbrier following election. Mrs. Frank Hamilton Davis also will be of the November colony, and Mrs. Edingham Lawrence will arrive from New York for a two weeks' stay. Mrs. L. Sanford Procter is to arrive from Briarcliff early in November, as are the L. Stuart Wings, of Manhattan.

The Long Island colony at the Greenbrier during November will be a notable one. Mr. and Mrs. Clifford V. Brokaw are coming from their Glen Cove estate, and the Howard Brokaws will come from Southampton. Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Batterman and Mr. and Mrs. Irving Cox, of Mill Neck, L. I., and Mr. and Mrs. Acosta Nichols, of New York, will be of this particular colony. Also from Long Island will be Mr. and Mrs. Frederick A. Snow, of Southampton; Mr. and Mrs. Francis L. Hine, of Glen Cove; Mr. and Mrs. Lyman N. Hine, of Locust Valley; Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Fletcher and Miss Jean Fletcher, of Glen Cove; Mr. and Mrs. Lorenzo E. Woodhouse and Miss Marjorie Woodhouse, of Easthampton, and Mrs. William Ambrose Taylor, of Greenwich, Conn.

Mrs. George W. Brewster, of Oyster Bay, and her sister-in-law, Mrs. Fredrick Foster Brewster, of New Haven, Conn., are to spend November at the Greenbrier.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert C. Pell will represent Tuxedo at White Sulphur. Mr. and Mrs. Stephen H. P. Pell, of New York, are to join Colonel and Mrs. Robert M. Thompson.

Charles H. Thieriot, of Oyster Bay, will be one of the late autumn arrivals. Mrs. Newbold Harris will arrive here next month to spend three weeks.

Mrs. William Harkness and Miss Louise Harkness, of New York, are spending a week here before going north. Mr. and Mrs. Harry Payne Bingham, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Paige and James C. Parrish Jr. form a party at the Casino.

Miss Edna H. Barger has joined her father, Milton L. Barger, who is spending the autumn here in company of John Ellis Postlethwaite.

At the Greenbrier are Miss L. Louise Sands, Miss Julia Berwind, Mrs. Lewis Cass Ledgard, Mrs. Richard Norris, Miss Mary Norris and Mrs. Alfred H. Rosenzweig, of Philadelphia; Miss Both Leary, Mrs. Pierce H. Butler, Miss Kathryn Bach, Mrs. Frank Withington, Mrs. Benjamin C. Porter, Mrs. Vincent Kereens and Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. O'Laughlin, of New York.

John Ellis Postlethwaite gave one of the largest dinners of the week at the Greenbrier on Thursday in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Widener, of Philadelphia.

Mr. and Mrs. John R. Drexel and William Hude Neilson are spending three weeks at the Greenbrier.

Among New Yorkers now here are Dr. and Mrs. Edmund Le Roy Dow, Mrs. Edward W. McKenna, Wilbur O. Bloodgood, Miss Rosina Brookwood, Mr. and Mrs. Richard D. Bracey, Samuel L. Parrish, Mrs. Pierce H. Butler, Mrs. M. F.

Mrs. L. O. Cameron, of Washington, is here with her father, Mrs. Lathrop Randolph, of New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Cass Ledgard arrived from New York, as have Mr. and Mrs. Irving Valentine, Mrs. Barclay Ward, Miss Caroline Ward, Philip Kip Rhineland and Lordland Spencer.

Mrs. William du Pont gave a dinner at the Oaks and also entertained at Valley View. The party included Mr. and Mrs. Edward M. Melvin.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry G. Haskell, before their departure for New York, entertained at dinner the Baron and Baroness Rosenkrantz and Miss Virginia Latrobe.
